COURSE OVERVIEW

Indigenous people have extensive experience of being involved in research, both as participants, and leaders of research within universities and the knowledge foundations of their cultural and philosophical traditions.

As an Indigenous student, you will have the opportunity to formalise and build upon the profound depth of research knowledge and practice that already exists within your culture.

LEARNING OUTCOMES INCLUDE:

Describe and explain ways of conducting research using methodologies drawn from Indigenous Knowledge traditions.

Communicate relevant and appropriate Indigenous philosophical frameworks and protocols that underpin an Indigenous researcher's work within their social and cultural contexts.

Explain relevant and appropriate research practices that are governed and shaped by Indigenous cultural and philosophical principles and protocols.

Apply Indigenous research practices as a researcher embedded within a social and cultural context.

Communicate research practices and outcomes in ways that are sensitive to the social and cultural contexts of the researcher.

Communicate meaningfully about research and research practices with researchers from other academic traditions.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

You will graduate with the knowledge and skills that are useful for work with:

- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, organisations and communities;
- government departments and agencies; or
- private agencies and organisations that are involved in Indigenous affairs.
